

ABSTRACT

A lithographic apparatus includes a support structure adapted to clamp an object. The support structure and the object clamped thereon define a compartment. The supply structure is connected to the compartment and supplies a fluid to the compartment. The supply structure includes a meter to measure a change in at least one of flow velocity of the fluid and pressure of the fluid.